- Creating panel presentation packages

Bid Writing

With independent healthcare providers winning an ever increasing number of health and social care delivery contracts, there has never been a better time for small and medium care providers to bid against local and national tenders. Furthermore, Commissioners are now asking that the voluntary sector is included in joint-up working strategies, and thus there is also a significant opportunity for charities to put forward bids to provide social and health care services.

Words Worth Reading Ltd help health and social care providers secure tenders by completing their PQQs, writing their bid responses and creating supporting documentation. We can also provide a critique of pre-drafted bid responses.

What are the key benefits of using this service?

- An efficient and cost effective way to maximize your chances of success when it comes to securing new business opportunities.
- Our expertise in health and social care means we have the detailed contextual knowledge required for responding to operational strategy questions.
