

Hi, and welcome to the June edition of the Words Worth Reading Ltd newsletter. We are hoping for more sun this month and are looking forward to some 'good reads' in all the manuscripts we have received. So far this year the number of submissions we have received has exceeded the annual submission rate seen in 2009, 2010 and 2011...and we're only half way through the year!

Are you ready for CQC registration?

The CQC is now halfway through a series of regional GP registration road shows. The feedback from those who have attended these sessions has been used to help the CQC understand which areas of registration you want more information about.

At the moment, the CQC is compiling a summary of the key questions asked at the registration events so far, together with the answers, which will be available on the CQC website soon.

The CQC have also launched a new section on their website to help GPs prepare for a CQC inspection. It will help you understand how they check your compliance with the regulations. It also includes practical suggestions for things you may want to consider in preparation for an inspection. There is a timetable explaining that all GP practices and other primary medical services have to be registered by April 2013, under the Health and Social Care Act 2008. The registration process starts in July, when GP practises will receive a letter with a code which will allow you to start the application process on the CQC website.

Once you've set up your account(s), you can start filling in the online application form straightaway, now is the time to start thinking about your registration.

The CQC have published a leaflet to help you prepare for a CQC inspection. It will help you understand how they check your compliance with the regulations. It also includes practical suggestions for things you may want to consider in preparation for an inspection.

You can view a copy of the leaflet on the CQC website. Or you can visit our healthcare pages at <http://www.wordsworthreading.co.uk/cqc-consultancy-support.php> for help with your documentation and preparation for your inspection.

The SportsWriter.org.uk

Writing Competition

The latest SportsWriter.org.uk writing competition will be coming to a close shortly.

The organisers of this writing competition are looking for original sports related writing, whether fiction, poetry, or nonfiction.

There are cash prizes up for grabs, but the best part of this competition is that it will raise money for Cyclists Fighting Cancer.

Entrants must be 18 years and older, and entries should be written in English. The deadline is 1st July 2012, so enter now for your chance to win up to £250.

For more details on the competition, go to www.SportsWriter.org.uk/writing-competition

Are you suffering from writers' block?

Freewriting is a technique used by many writers, particularly when they are starting a project. The idea behind freewriting is to outline your initial thoughts surrounding the area you are about to address.

It is a great way to clear your mind and focus your thought process before beginning a project. It can even help overcome writers' block and feelings of angst about an up and coming deadline.

If you are experiencing problems completing your manuscript, Words Worth Reading Ltd can help. They offer a mentoring service for those writers who want to make their ideas a reality.

In other news...
