July 2012 ISSUE 42

Hi, and welcome to the July edition of the Words Worth Reading Ltd newsletter. All the Words Worth Reading Ltd team are getting excited at what appears to be the start of our summer...long may it last! This month we have seen an increase in postgraduate dissertations and theses submissions arriving in the office as students prepare for summer submission deadlines, contact a member of the team to find out how we can support you.

Get ready to start your registration application?

Your CQC registration application form will be available online from early July, and you can start to fill it out once you've completed your registration set-up. The CQC will shortly be sending out letters about this, which will contain a web link to the registration set-up form and your 12-digit registration access code. You might receive more than one letter and access code if you have several contracts, but if your services are provided by one legal entity, you only need to complete one registration for your provider. Visit the CQC website to read their 'quick tips' guide to help you complete set-up and the application form.

For support and advice regarding any aspect of your CQC registration contact our experienced team.

Do you have your CRB check for your CQC registration?

Since May 2012, an online process has allowed providers to obtain a CRB disclosure number for their CQC registration. Applicants will need to register with the CQC CRB. You can do this by visiting <https://cqc.disclosures.co.uk/> and clicking on the link under the heading 'How to Apply.'

Once you've completed your online CRB application, you'll be asked to print out a referral letter. You'll need to take this and the proof of identification requested in the form to one of 300 Post Offices to verify your identity. You will then receive your CQC-countersigned, enhanced level CRB certificate in the post. The process should take about one week though it may be longer.

However, don't apply too early for these checks, they are only valid for six months and need to be valid at the time the CQC assesses your application. It is recommended applying no earlier than two months before you plan to submit your application, e.g. if you choose to submit your form in December, don't apply for your CRB check until October.

Business Awards

HP launch their Smart Business Awards. The annual awards, started in 2012, will celebrate the best achievements of the UK's small and medium sized businesses. Each of the seven award categories recognises a different area of business, shining the spotlight on some of the country's most dynamic and hardworking businesses, whatever sector they may be in.

One business will also be awarded the overall title of HP Smart Business of the Year 2012.

Entering your business for an award is easy, simply read through the categories, decide which is most relevant to your business or employer and fill out the form at the bottom of the page.

The awards are open for entry from 29/05/12. A panel of experts will then judge the entries and shortlist the businesses they feel to be leading the way in terms of a smart and innovative approach to business in the UK.

If you'd like to apply check out how our awards services can help you.

What should you be doing in July ?

Since April 2012, the CQC website have be providing resources each month, to help you practice and prepare for registration with CQC. Within these articles, for each month, there is a: Practice meeting agenda document, this can be used in your practice meetings to start your discussions about CQC registration.

There are also, Slide Packs, for each month. The first slide pack, in April was an introduction to CQC registration. In May, the slide pack was a quick guide to key concepts. And in June, the slide pack was about completing your application. Each month also includes a Monthly Checklist, you can use this checklist to help you keep track of decisions you've made.

In other news...

All you need to know – The end of the month sees the release of Sam Pearce's latest book; 'Writing Novels: The Essential Guide' - published by Need2Know Books. This interactive reference book will help you create your own fiction masterpiece step-by-step, encouraging the reader to participate in specific activities throughout each chapter to practically support the development of their novel. Each chapter contains a mixture of checklists, reflection points, templates and visual aids to guide the reader through each of the different elements of novel writing. Key points are summarised at the end of each chapter, acting as a reference guide for those readers who want to dip in and dip out of the book and can also provide a handy refresh of the content covered.
